Updated qualification procedures for the Tokyo 2020 Olympic and Paralympic Games have been approved by the International Olympic Committee and International Paralympic Committee and released by World Archery. The processes were altered due to the COVID-19 pandemic and one-year delay of the Games. The documents outline the number of available quota places, the events at which they can be obtained, and deadlines in the entry process.

The 87 quota places already awarded for Tokyo are retained by the National Olympic Committees and it also remains the prerogative of the nations to decide who fills each place. As some athletes had already been confirmed for the Games, this has resulted in some difficult situations. Should these archers remain selected? Should new trials be held? Should selections that were in progress be resumed or restarted? There's no simple answer. National teams can update the information provided by contacting the World Archery office.
